Jennifer did not and would not want this , nor did she care to have her family made out to be this loving caring family when in fact she suffered her illness alone she and I until her last breath . Her mother, sisters or children never went to one doctor's appointment with her . Not one . None of them . They never sat with her during chemo treatment nor called to check on her . Not once. I have the letter Jennifer wrote before she passed away. Even in her last moments she forgave them even though she could never understand how her family could be so hateful towards her while she was fighting for her life .
